

As a frequent traveler, I am against allowing cellphone conversations on flights. As soon as the plane lands and passengers are allowed cellphone use, it is already annoying enough. A 2-3 hour flight with someone constantly talking LOUD in your ear would lead to incidents of air rage against fellow passengers. It would be rude and disruptive for me to have a movie or music playing on my laptop without headphones and the same can be said for carrying on a phone conversation.